moods of southwestern at memphis

for us: a world set back in time . . . with gothic building and dark corridors . . .
the expectancy of a fresh start and the restrained excitement of new adventure

for us: the "freshman" thrill of being rushed . . . the organized chaos of rush and orientation . . .

for us: bridge games in the smoke-filled lair . . . with blaring music and raucous laughter . . . confusion in the cloister when chapel lets out early . . . break-time at the library . . . clusters of people going for cokes . . . or short walks
. . . or long ones . . .

for us: icy mist that whips your face on the way to the brown shacks . . . the tension in hardy while the judges decide on all-sing winners . . . cokes . . .
cookies and fast-dancing at an open house . . .

for us: a walk together in soft snow . . . then spring rains . . . after plaguing us all winter . . . suddenly warm and romantic . . . exams interrupt . . . for some time everyone's cross and quiet and tensed . . . then longer days . . .

for us: a sudden swish of brightness at twilight when the campus lights up all at once
. . . a blanket of deep pink ringing the lush green gardens . . . the sentiment of near-end to a year of joy . . . excitement . . . discovery . . . loneliness and new awakening . . . all this . . . for us . . .

stillness

for us: the hollow flap of bedroom slippers echoing down a silent hall at three a.m. . . .

for us: the i'm-afraid-to-look anxiety of finding a letter-less mail-box . . . the sinking feeling when we find still no word from a non-thinking loved one . . .

for us: chins rested on palms . . . eyes thinking instead of seeing . . . the electric . . . thought-full quiet in a provoking chapel program . . .

for us: a sunday day . . . a gaze through a dormitory window . . . aloneness . . . restlessness . . .

for us: a glance toward a thin white needle piercing the blue sky . . . a look upward . . . with a heart turned down . . . and a constant reminder of the always-ness of the dignity and serenity of the eternal . . .

for us: the over-hanging closeness and endlessness of dusk . . . strolling to dinner among looming stone relics of an age past . . . with ideals for the present . . .

for us: a quiet . . . profound feeling of being a part of these gothic structures . . . a yearning . . . a searching . . . and yet a security . . .

for us: joy in acceptance at southwestern . . . by letter . . . seeing old faces and new ones . . . those dreamed about and dreamed up . . . the first tinge of belongingness . . . i am a part . . . our college . . . not yours . . .

for us: parties . . . elaborate or intimate . . . return after christmas vacation . . . second semester and a new freedom . . . settling down . . . the thrill of it . . . special smiles . . . everyone is needed . . .

for us: twoness . . . dreams of someday . . . the gentle kiss . . . the familiarity . . . knowingness of eyes . . . relaxing silence . . . exaltation singing inside you exaltation exhaling from you . . . together . . .

for us: to become acquainted with a book . . . the friend who has so much to tell you . . . the joy of listening and discovering through the command of the printed word . . . the giving of one's self to the world of knowledge applying those things you have learned . . . time for reflection on the seasons . . .

for us: realization of growing power . . . the elation coming with insight of another person . . . freedom . . . joy . . .

fulfillment

for us: when we have walked down that last path . . . turned round the last curve
. . . finally . . . into the newness of ourselves undiscovered . . .

for us: there will be joy in a tear . . . a gentle moan in a happy song . . . but still rejoicing . . . (one must understand the silent moments of a half known shadow into which creeps memory . . .)

for us: remember? . . . that years die red where pigeons fly . . . and softly drifts the night filled to overflowing with laughter . . . smoky haze . . . and much disputed theories . . . the weariness of fulfillment . . . dreams reflected in square cubes of bluish glass . . . i think that the wind blew right that day . . .

for us: there are few regrets . . . few tears . . . few . . . but we cannot be sure . . .
only thankful . . .

Dr. Burnet C. Tuthill

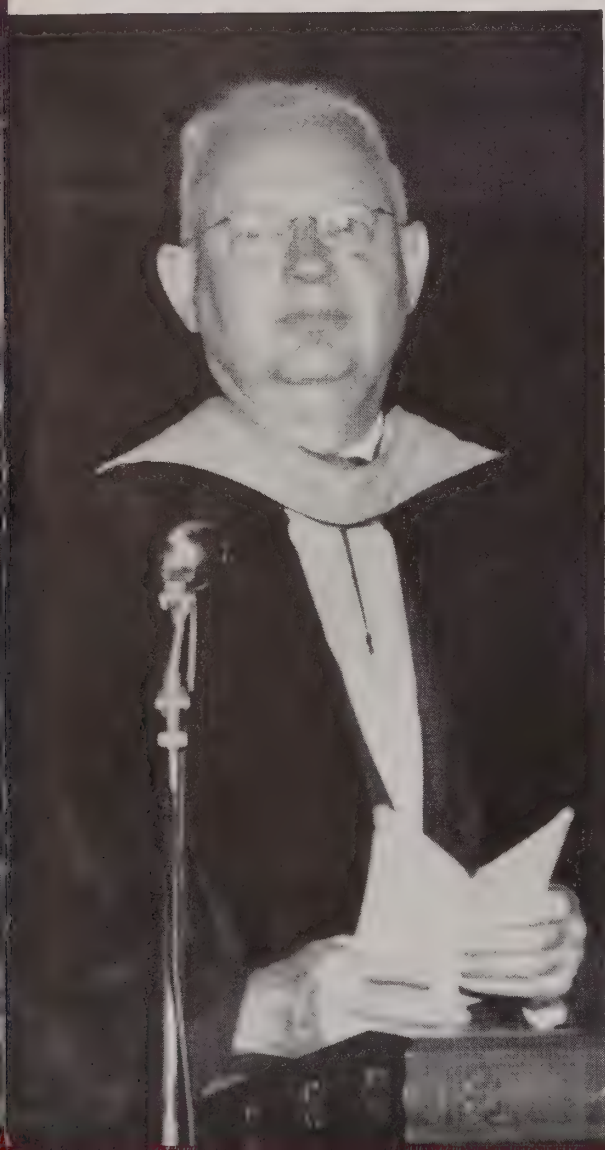

For embodying the principles of musical integrity and representing the spirit of intellectual integrity which pervades Southwestern,

For willingly sharing of the richness and variety of your own musical knowledge and experience,

For bringing national recognition and fame to our campus through your personal achievements in the music world,

For doing all this and still being "papa" to countless Southwestern students,

We lovingly dedicate the 1959 Lynx to you.

When the 1958 football season came to a close, the Lynx of Southwestern were proud possessors of a 5-3 record. Coach Rick Mays and his fine staff of coaches and scouts should be congratulated for molding a winning team out of a nucleus of dependable veterans and group of green freshmen. As the season went by, the team gained more experience and became not only a fine team to watch, but a winning team as well.

The Lynx got off to a flying start by being good "mudders." In the first game of the year Southwestern edged a 7-6 victory from the Millsaps Majors in Jackson. It was a defensive battle from the start, and Southwestern's only score came in the third quarter on a breakaway run of 65 yards by Hammett. The margin of difference, however, was the perfect extra point kicked by Davidson on the rain-soaked field. The Majors scored a TD early in the fourth quarter and went for two points by trying to run through the Southwestern line. The middle of the Southwestern line, the group most directly responsible for Southwestern's good season, showed their ability by stopping the play and saving the game.

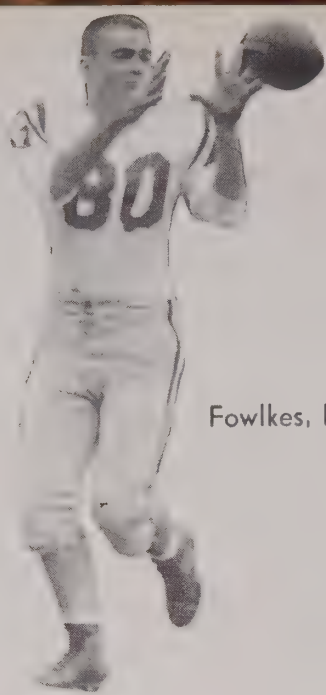

Southwestern played their first home game against the Mississippi College Choctaws on Fargason Field. The Lynx were out to scalp the Indians from the start. The Cats scored in every quarter to accomplish a feat which had not been done in recent Southwestern football history, beating both Millsaps and Mississippi College, the two Jackson teams, in the same year. Weeks started the scoring by tackling a Choctaw punter behind the goal for a safety in the first quarter. The score was 9-0 at halftime as Davidson gathered in a pass from Echols with 30 seconds remaining. In the third quarter Echols scored on an option play, then Hammett grabbed a stray M. C. pass and ran it back 48 yards for a touchdown. Davidson added another extra point. In the fourth quarter Gay threw a short pass to Davidson for the fourth Lynx TD of the game. The Southwestern line again proved its worth by holding Mississippi College to one touchdown.

The next Friday night the Cats journeyed over to Conway, Arkansas and met the Hendrix Warriors. The Lynx took the third in a row by mixing a fine defensive game with a hard charging offense. Clinton hit pay dirt twice in the game with Echols and Jerden each scoring after sustained drives. Davidson added two extra points to aid the Southwestern cause. The Lynx line, growing more powerful and fearless each game, held the Warriors to 76 yards on the ground, and 63 yards in the air as the Lynx copped a 26-7 victory.

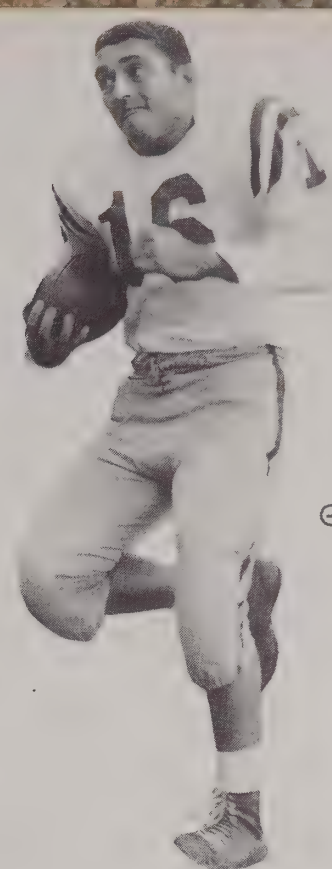

Riding a three-game winning streak, the Lynx faced the always tough Praying Colonels from Centre. It was a fine fall day and a large crowd jammed Fargason Field to watch the unbeaten Lynx. Southwestern scored first. Early in the game Echols scored from one yard out on a quarterback sneak but the attempted extra point was wide. From this point until the waning moments of the half, a terrific defensive battle took place. A blocked punt set up a Colonel TD and Centre made the extra point good. Following the kickoff Landers carried the pigskin all the way giving the home fans a beautiful display of broken field running. Yet all was in vain as Southwestern received a penalty. The halftime score of 7-6 was the final score. Southwestern could move the ball with ease to the Centre 20-yard line but then the Cats could not keep their steam. In the closing seconds of the game Echols called a jump pass to Weeks which almost connected. However the game ended shortly. It was a magnificent struggle but a hard one to lose.

Ask anybody on the football team; it's a long way to Texas and when you get there, it is short. After a sixteen-hour trip by bus and train on Friday, the Lynx just could not get started on Saturday. On a very hot, dry day the Kangaroos took advantage of the weather to riddle the Lynx with passes, five of which went for TD's. The lone Lynx tally came in the fourth quarter when Ronnie Smith hit pay dirt on a ten-yard jaunt. A tired, indented team returned from Austin determined to take advantage of an extra week of rest. Injuries were allowed to heal, and tired muscles got a chance to rest.

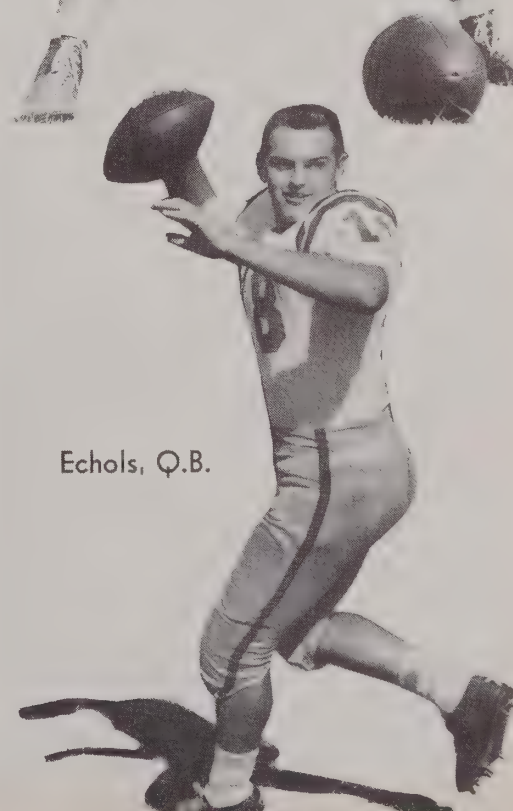

The Lynx picked Howard for its next victim. Fargason Field was wet and there was still a slight drizzle as the game began. However, the Lynx were out to prove that the Bulldogs of Howard were all wet. The game started slowly with both teams playing cautiously in the first quarter. In the second period the Lynx began to move. Echols scored six points on a keeper and then passed for two more. Fitzgerald recovered a Howard fumble that set up a TD pass play from Echols to Smith on a fourth-down situation. In the second half Coach Mays substituted freely and the Lynx scored another six points when Echols went over on a line plunge. Howard scored two TD's in the last four minutes of the game as every Lynx player got into the game.

Reed, F.B.

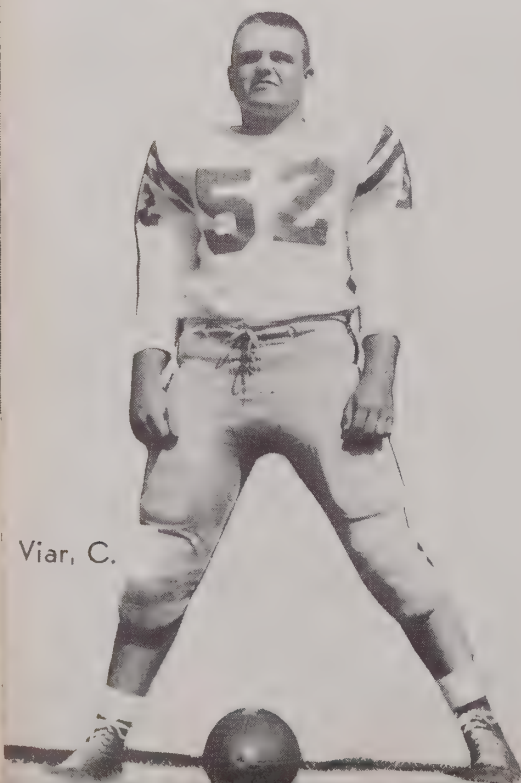

The Little Giants of Wabash proved a stubborn foe but the running and passing of Echols spoked the Lynx to a 28-20 win. The first half was a defensive stalemate except for a 60-yard drive engineered by the Lynx with Gillis plunging over for the score. All the rest of the Lynx scoring was done in the third quarter when Southwestern scored three TD's—the first field goal of the season. Clinton scored two of the touchdowns, one on a pass from Echols and another on a 10-yard sprint. Echols scored the other TD on a line plunge set up by a pass interrupted by Davidson.

In the final game of the season Southwestern journeyed to Sewanee to meet the powerful Tigers. The Tigers went into the game undefeated and came out of the game with an undefeated season. Early in the first quarter Southwestern moved the ball well but this was short-lived, as the tables soon turned. The Lynx were beaten by the truly great Sewanee team 47-0. However all was not dark. Tollison and Oxley turned in brilliant performances to keep the score down as the fired-up Sewanee team moved on.

All in all, it was a fine season. In every game fine performances were turned in. The Lynx had an exciting team to watch as they were always dangerous and could run, pass, and play defensive with equal skill. For this winning season, which was only the second since World War II, we should recognize a group of individuals who knew the real value of team work.

The 1958-59 Lynx basketball team completed the season with an overall record of 11-13. However, the record does not tell the entire story. All eleven Lynx victories were won on the home court, and the Lynx had a bad year on the road. The home fans had a chance to see the fast moving Lynx win eleven while only losing four in Mallory Memorial Gymnasium. Among these games were thrillers such as the 82-80 win over Union, the 67-64 win over Birmingham Southern, and the heart-breaking 60-59 loss to Delta State in the last three seconds. The season was an uphill battle for the Lynx as they got off to a slow start and had to fight to even up the record. In the last part of the season the Lynx rode a hot streak of 8 wins and 5 losses, a considerable improvement over the 2-5 record before Christmas.

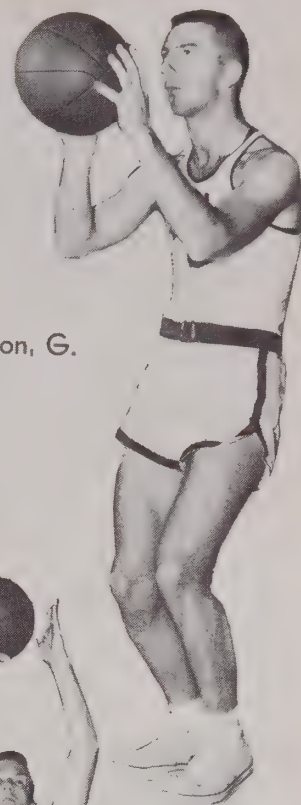

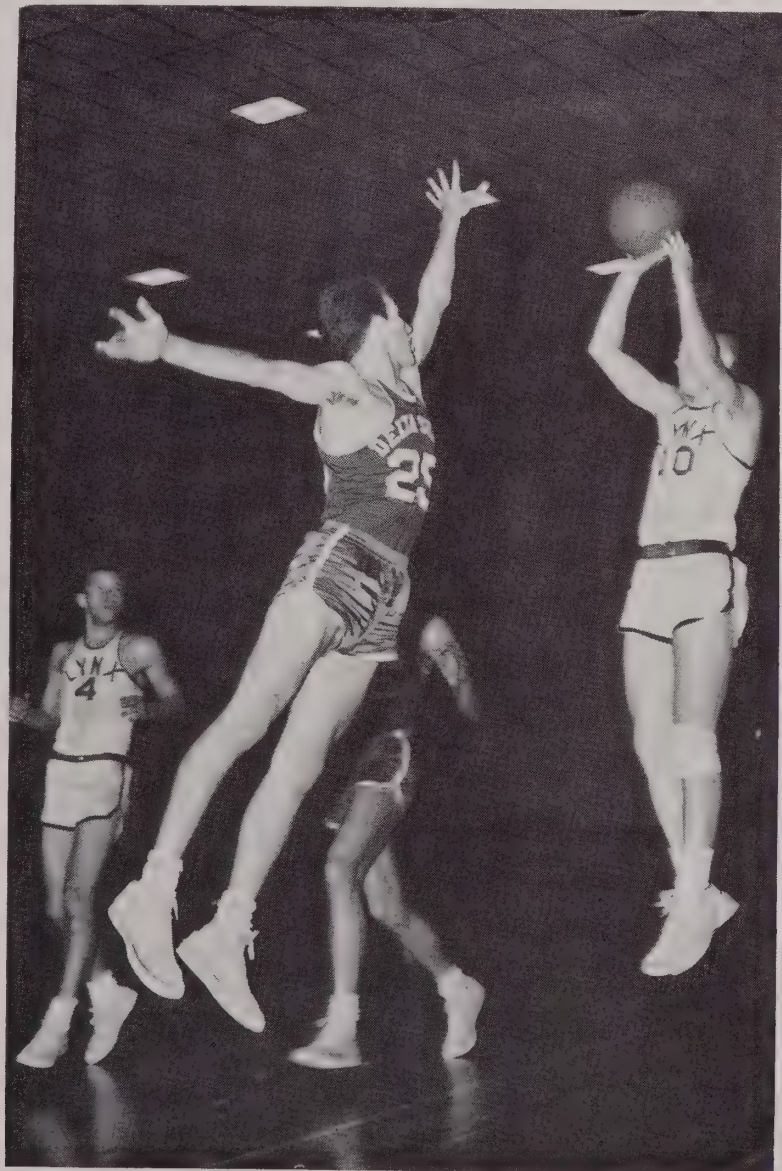

In the first game of the season, the Lynx journeyed to Conway, Arkansas to meet Arkansas State Teachers. Although the Lynx were beaten 86-80, this was not the greatest loss. Joe Boals and Bill Harris, two of Southwestern's mainstays, were injured. Boals, co-captain, suffered a sprained ankle which slowed him down until after the Christmas holidays. Harris received a fracture of the left wrist which bothered him all season, but which kept him out of only a few games. Momo Waller, the other co-captain, was out with illness for six weeks before the season began so he was not ready to go full speed until after the holidays. However, one of the sure signs of progress in basketball at Southwestern was the increased depth the team showed when injuries occurred. Other men capable of fine performances filled in for the injured Lynx players.

The first signs of an ever-improving Lynx team was their fine victories in the Dixie Tournament. Entering the play as a decidedly underdog team, they stomped Sewanee 67-57. They went on to crush Union 85-76 in probably the finest game the Lynx played all year. As added honors beside the championship trophy, Waller and Boals were named to the All-Tournament team. Also, Boals was selected as Most Valuable Player in the tournament as his fine outside shooting and ball handling sparked the Lynx to both victories.

The season seemed to move by quickly with the Lynx playing consistently good ball on the home court. Each game was filled with excitement as the Lynx fielded its most colorful team in years. Also, the Lynx record was one of its best in recent years.

At the close of the season Southwestern and its basketball team were host to the Pre-Conference Tournament. Again the Lynx went in as underdogs and made a fine showing. They defeated Millsaps 76-66 but were on the short end of a 63-58 score against Lambuth. However, Boals and Waller again received All-Tournament honors. This series was an indication of what the opposing coaches thought of these two boys.

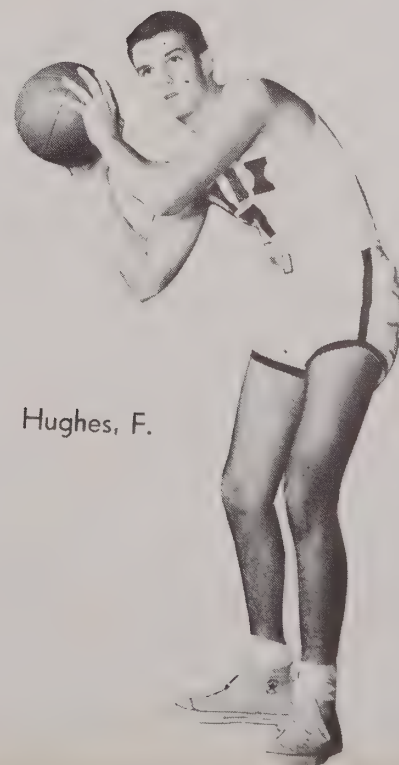

As for next year the picture is darkened by the graduation of three outstanding players. Boals, McMillion, and Waller will receive the sheepskin in June. However, returning to help brighten the picture are eight lettermen. This group consists of three-year lettermen Harris and Bertrand; two-year lettermen MacQueen, Fury, Curtis, and Hixon; with one-year lettermen Arman and Lipsett returning also. Southwestern had one of its best freshmen teams in years, which will help bolster the squad next year. Although a little short on height for the coming season, the Lynx will be ready.

McMillion, G.

MacQueen, C.

Hughes, F.

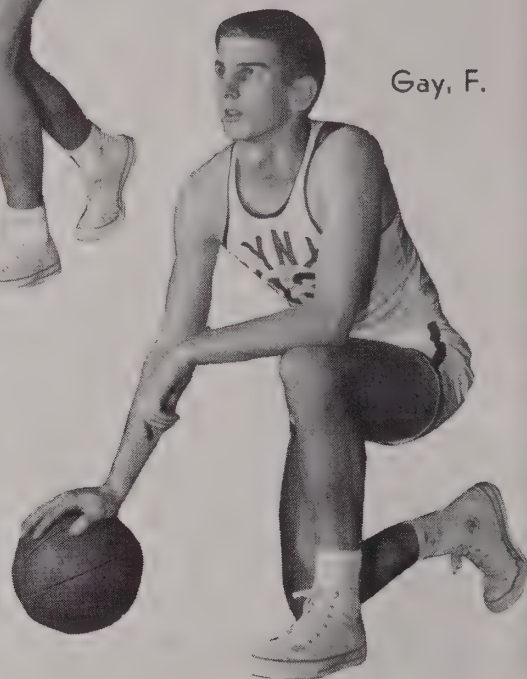

Hartzog, C.

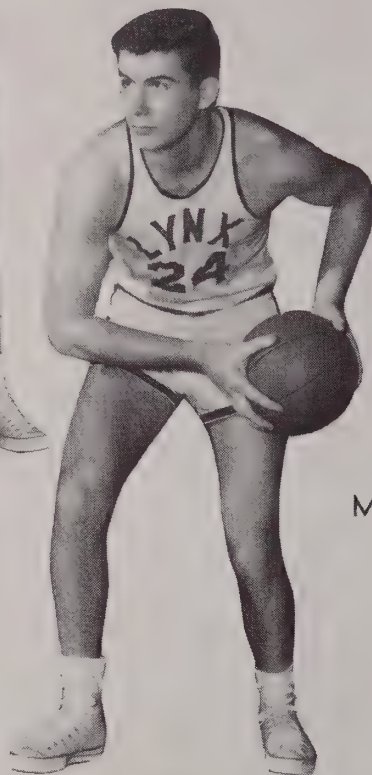

Nance, F.

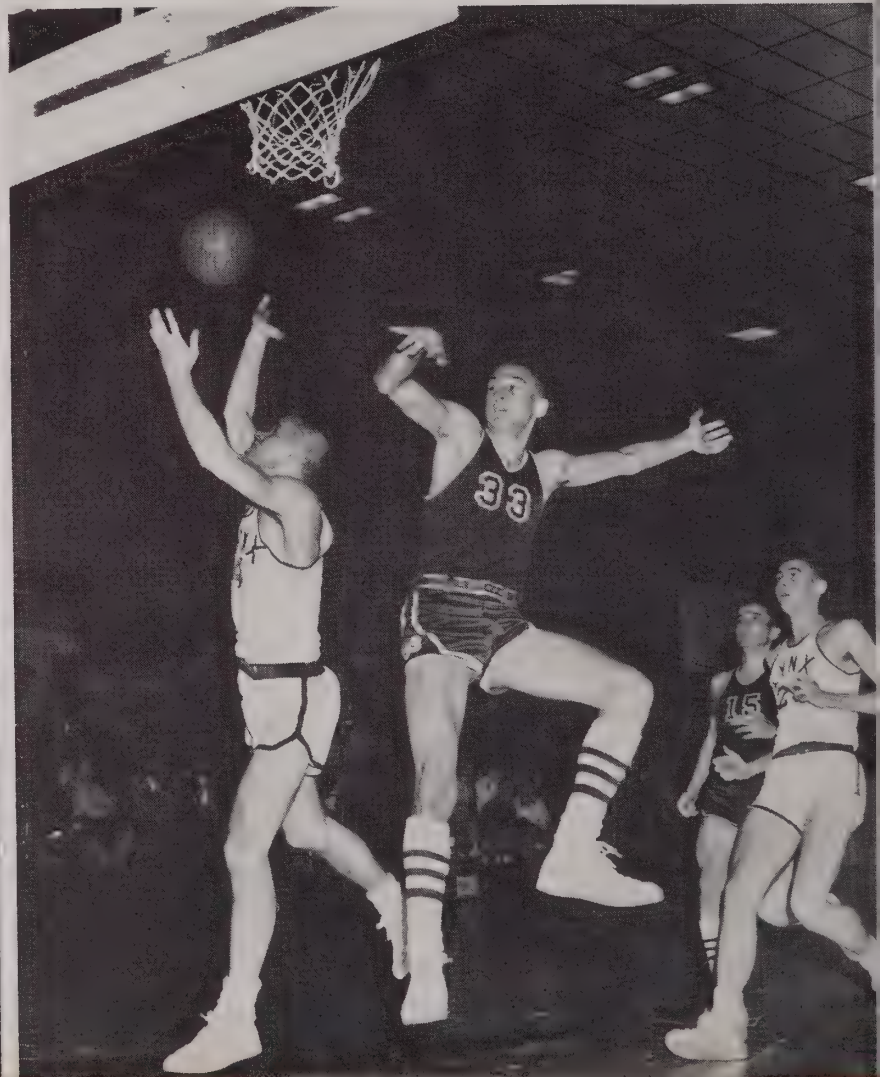

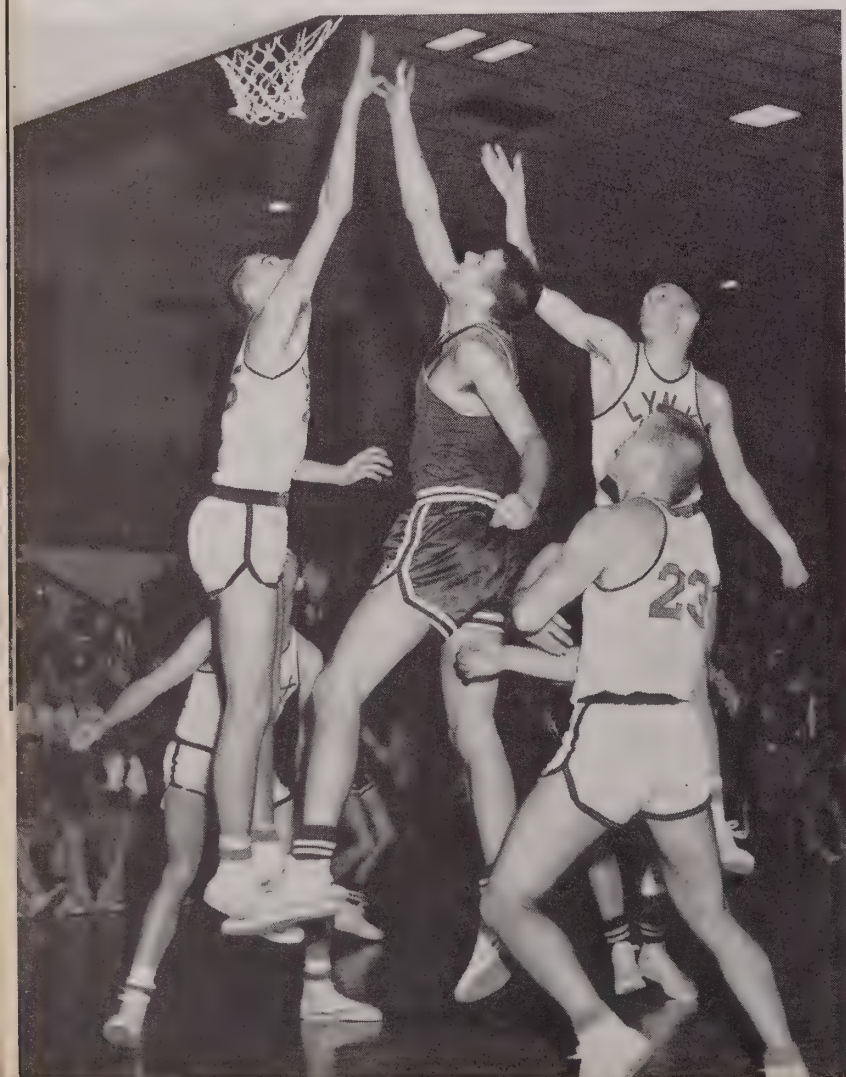

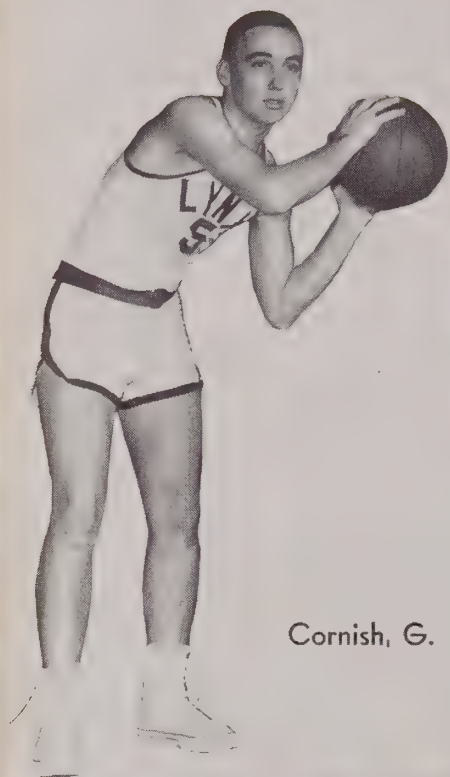

Gay, F.

Minter, G.

Cornish, G.

Most of the credit for this year's performance can be attributed to the outstanding job of coaching turned in by Coach Woody Johnson. In his two years at this school he has completely changed the outlook on basketball at Southwestern. The students and faculty, and the people of Memphis realize that every time the Lynx take to the hardwood, they will give the opponents a good battle. Determination and hustle, the center of Coach Johnson's coaching philosophy, were the key words in this year's success.

As for outstanding individuals on the team, Waller and Boals were the sparkplugs all of the season. Both men were slowed down at times by illness or injuries, but still this did not keep them from having a banner year. Waller was the team's leading rebounder with Boals being the outstanding scorer. These two boys will be sorely missed next season. Waller, picture on page 174, is shown battling for a rebound against Howell of Mississippi State. Boals, pictured on page 175, is shown sinking another one of his patented jump shots.

Our story would not be complete without the mention of the scoring record broken by Boals this season. With 14:44 to go in the second half against Delta State, Boals broke the all-time scoring record held previously by Bob Jackson. Jackson's record was 1265 points in his college playing career. Boals went on to score 1332 points to insure his record a long life. Also, Boals was selected by his teammates as Most Valuable Player and awarded the Lawson-Cavette Award. So all, in all, it was a fine season for both Boals and the Lynxcats.

Women's Athletics

The Women's Physical Education Program at Southwestern is based on a theory — everyone can and should enjoy sports in some capacity. Of course, we hope that each student can find an activity which she can learn and like, not only while in college, but also for pleasure after graduation. As a result of this theory we stress in our program golf, tennis, badminton and exercise, but we also teach basketball, volleyball, field hockey, archery, fencing, softball and modern dance.

Enlivening the teaching of these sports is the Intramural activities in which the five sororities and the Independent group compete. A tournament in each sport climaxes the season with a trophy awarded to the winner. A varsity team too is recognized with a gold medal award. Those girls who have shown themselves to be particularly outstanding in sports are awarded a college blazer and elected to membership in Pan-Olympics. The program is under the leadership of Madelyn Richardson, Director of the Physical Education Department.

Modern Dance is also a very important part of the physical education program, and each student is required to take part. The group invites those especially interested in dance, performing each year for the college and Memphis organizations.

Each year we feel the success of the department expands due to the enthusiasm and interest of the participating women.

Editor's Note

Before undertaking the experience of producing the Southwestern yearbook for 1958-59, the editors could not conceive of the business of pleasing each student with memories of the college year. Reflecting over the year as editors, we feel that our thanks to each person helping us to bring about the realization of our efforts is the returning of a few of our experiences in our lives as editors:

Being greeted by half the student body and freshmen(!) all enthusiastic and ready to devote their time and energy to our project . . . waning dreams of delegation . . . getting to know each staff member well . . . we learn that Harvey doesn't have to knit to relieve tension . . . that Mary Sue wanted her picture in the middle of the football players . . . that Jerry has fabulous plans for saving the annual and the college money (which work!) . . . that Marcy wanted to use the same pictures as last year with different names . . . that our cover representative, William Snell, went with a half-breed named Beryl . . . that Mr. Marshall is patience personified . . . that Barbara has difficulty keeping up with members of the class . . . that Mr. Springfield doesn't fuss at girls . . . that the Organization Woman of the year is Jocelyn.

Our memories reflect our gratitude to our staff members, to our business manager, Jerry Robinson, to our advisor, Mr. Springfield, to Memphis Engraving Company, Jay, to Murdock Printing Company — to these people who made editing the yearbook a pleasure and a joy rather than a task.
